Lawyers, judges, and youth advocate groups have already expressed considerable interest in the implications of the project's results for the formation and modification of juvenile law and procedure. In each chapter, I have attempted to describe carefully the ways in which the empirical research results are applicable to these concerns, and I have tried to specify the limits which must be acknowledged in interpreting the results for application in the legal process.

NJ's New Juvenile Waiver Law What's Different Daniel M

If a juvenile is convicted of a non-waivable crime following waiver to adult criminal court, the conviction reverts to a juvenile conviction and the matter is returned to juvenile court. If a juvenile is convicted in adult criminal court, and receives a sentence of incarceration, the juvenile serves that sentence in a juvenile facility, unless the State overcomes that presumption.
